At-source tax on savings tools likely to go up

The government is likely to increase the rate of tax deducted at source from profit earned through savings instruments in the upcoming fiscal year (FY), 2019-20. The at-source tax rate for the government's savings tools might be revised upward to around 7.0-8.0% from the existing 5.0% in the budget for FY 20. On the other hand, a set of tax incentives might be offered in the budget for the capital market investors to make the market vibrant. The tax-free limit of dividend income for the investors might be increased to BDT 50,000 from the existing BDT 25,000.

Govt's bank borrowing to soar 77pc

The government may bump up bank borrowing by as much as 77.32 percent to BDT 54,800 crore for financing the budget deficit in fiscal 2019-20 as it looks to reduce overdependence on saving instruments. However, the government had a high bank borrowing target this fiscal year too -- of BDT 30,908 crore -- but that is unlikely to be met. In the first 10 months of the current fiscal year, it did not borrow from the banking system; rather, it paid back banks. But from May 1 it started borrowing and as of May 21 the amount stood at BDT 11,609 crore.

Tax on savings tools may go up

The government may increase the tax at source on interest income from investment in national savings instruments in the next fiscal year as it looks to curb people's appetite for the tools. The rate of withholding tax on the interest earnings from the savings instruments may go up from 5% to 7.5% or 10%.

Budget 2019-20: Tax holiday may extend for five years, safety program to see trimmed allocation

The upcoming budget is likely to expand and extend the areas for tax holiday facility, and coverage of social safety net program. However, shares of budget allocation and Gross Domestic Product (GDP) against the social safety net program are likely to be trimmed down in the upcoming budget compared to the current ones.
